AOLE	Challenge: Continue to create a travel brochure about your new hotel/resort
Language Literacy and Communication 	 Before people book holidays, they look at TripAdvisor website which has been set up for people to give reviews and comments on the holiday they have just been on. We would like you to write a Tripadvisor review that someone has written about your hotel/resort. It can be a positive review or a terrible review (terrible might be more fun to write). Here is an example for you: I arrived at your hotel at midnight with my very tired family of four. We were met by a very rude man at reception who threw me the keys to our room and didn't offer to take our cases from us. As our room was on the 11th floor, we decided to take the lift. To our horror, the lift was not working, so we had to carry 4 heavy cases up 22 flights of stairs. When we reached our room, we were met by ants crawling all over our floor. I rang reception immediately and were told that nothing could be done tonight and we'd have to get on with it. The holiday did not get any better than this. The food was terrible, cold and undercooked and the pool area was dirty and crammed with loud, unruly children. The entertainment team tried their best, but I've seen better acting from my Year 4 class I teach back home! Do not go to this hotel! One star is too much! Avoid at all costs! Try and be as creative as possible, using as many descriptive words as you can. If you can make us laugh, you have succeeded!
Health and Wellbeing 	 In holiday resorts, there are always entertainment teams trying to keep people active and having fun. They usually come up with silly games for people to get involved with. Also, as we are all in lockdown, Twitter is full of new crazes and challenges for people to get involved with at home such as the #teapot challenge and #teabag challenge. We would like you to combine the two and create a game that you can do as an activity on holiday, but also you can do in your house or in your garden. I've been trying to throw a tennis ball in the air and catch it one-handed behind my back! Once you have created the challenge, try and get someone to record yourself doing it and perhaps you could put it in your My Files area for us to look at! We look forward to seeing these! Perhaps it could be the new Twitter craze!

Expressive Arts 	Every holiday brochure has photographs or pictures of the main features of the hotel. Your task this week is to draw a picture of the bedrooms of your hotel/resort. Make it as impressive as possible. Think of the following: - How many beds has it got? - Perhaps you are going to draw a picture of the bathroom as well? - Think of the different features people will want in a bedroom. Look at travel brochures in your house or go online for inspiration.
Science and Technology 	The pool is always the best part of the holiday but it is a bonus if there is a slide that goes into the pool. I would like you to design, draw and label the different features of your ultimate water slide which would be found in your hotel/resort. Think of the following when you are designing: • Have you got steps going up to your slide? • Have you got twists in your slide or is it straight? • What colour is it? • Have you just got 1 slide or have you got a mini waterpark?
