My Day as a Minibeast By Sam

Once upon a time there was a little boy called Sam.

Sam enjoyed learning all about minibeasts.

Early one morning, Sam went for a picnic up the woods.

Sam took a big bite of an apple when all of a sudden Sam felt himself becoming smaller and smaller and smaller, until he was the size of an ant.

“What’s happening” said Sam.

When Sam looked down at his reflection in a puddle he said with surprise “OH NO, I’M AN ANT!”

Sam was shocked but he began to explore the woods as an ant.

“This place is so big when you’re an ant!” he said.

Suddenly eight black legs came crawling towards him.

“AAAAAHHHH, A SPIDER!” he said jumping back.

“Please don’t eat me”

Sam ran as fast as his tiny little ant legs could carry him and he hid under a leaf.

Luckily the spider scurried past him chasing a fly.

“OH Phew”, “That was close!” he said with relief.

Sam began to think about what being an ant full time would be like. He closed his eyes and said sadly, “I don’t want to be an ant anymore, I want to be a boy again”.

Finally, as Sam cried he felt himself get bigger and bigger and bigger. His tears had magically turned him back to normal. At last he was a boy again.

With a big smile on his face, Sam walked home eager to tell his family about his adventure.

“I hope they believe me” he said.

The End